POST-SEASON GAMES
START NEXT MONDAY

Hughes, Carr, and Woodward
Selected to Handle Three Games at Union Station.

The final series for the amateur baseball championship of the city and the right to enter the inter-city series will start up Monday on the grounds at Union Station. Treasury, winner of section B, will meet the winner of section A which will be decided by Saturday.

There will be three games for the title played on successive days. President Robert H. Young has concluded all arrangements for the title games. The umpires will be Hughes, Carr and Woodward, two umpires to be selected for each contest.

Holy Name will meet Bureau today in the final scheduled game of the section A series. A win for the Churchmen will tie them up with the Rosedale team, while a defeat will make Rosedale the pennant winner in this section. In this event they will meet Treasury on Monday to decide who will meet the Baltimore and Richmond aggregations. Should Holy Name win today's battle they will play off the tie either Saturday or Monday.

"Mike" Moran was again the shining light in bringing home a victory for Rosedale yesterday. His triple in the fourth scored Dyer and Kehle, putting the game on ice for the Rosedale Leaguers.

Holy Name's big chance came in the fourth, when Fitzgerald was given a free ticket and moved to third on Crooke's single. Crooke then stole second, and this is why the Churchmen did not score. Fitzgerald tried to score on Blah's dinky grounder to Dyer and was caught at the plate. Crooke tried for third on Burley's grounder to Moran, and died; then Sweeney ended the inning by whiffing at three.

Jack Ryan, the Griffon's scout, and "Pants" Rowland, the White Sox manager, were on the side line yesterday looking "Mike" Moran over. Up to date about four big league scouts have been watching this youngster, and it will be no great surprise to see this chap signed to a contract shortly.

All games in the Washington Amateur League today will be staged on the Monument grounds. The schedule follows:

S. S. C. C. vs. Manhattan Club.
Regent A. C. vs. Truxton A. C.
Royal A. C. vs. Cherryvale Juniors.
Belvedere A. C. vs. Belmont A. C.

CITY POSTOFFICE
BOWLERS ACTIVE

League Gets Under Way September 15 on Own Alleys.

The City Postoffice Bowling League will start up September 15 with sixteen teams, following a reorganization meeting held recently.

The officers are as follows: President, T. R. Roberts; vice president, G. Ellis; secretary, F. Wolfe; treasurer, W. Hamacher, and official scorer, Mr. Bridwell. The name of the league has been changed to Postoffice Club League.

The list of teams which will bowl this season follows: Railway Mail, Postal Savings, Supplies, Delivery, Mailing, Carriers, Registry, Executive, Finance, Station F, Station B, Independents, Carriers Substitutes, Station F Substitutes, Midnight Crew, and Miscellaneous.

The league will use its own alleys, which were erected last spring. The Executive team is composed of the postmaster and leaders of the various divisions.

ALL IS NOW PEACE
IN CAMPS OF STARS

Welsh and White Continue Hard Work for Coming Battle.

COLORADO SPRINGS, Col., Aug. 25.—Peace again reigns in the rival camps of Freddie Welsh and Charley White, following a wordy war yesterday between their respective trainers, and the champion and his challenger are speeding up their training for the scheduled twenty-round championship battle here Labor Day.

White is back at work today, following his trip to Pueblo last night, where he seconded his brother in a bout between Jack White and Kid Mex. Charley has increased his boxing to six and eight rounds daily.

Welsh cut loose a little more today, but it is noticeable that he makes no chances of getting his hands hurt.

Welsh is looking forward to the arrival of Mrs. Welsh, who is coming from California to witness the big battle.

SEMI-FINAL ROUND
IN MEADOW TOURNEY

Washburn, Roberts, Armstrong, and Clothier Are Playing in Singles Today.

SOUTHAMPTON, N. Y., Aug. 25.—Watson Washburn, R. F. and Roberts, William J. Clothier and Joseph J. Armstrong will be semi-finalists today in the Meadow Club's invitation tennis tourney here.

Washburn got into the class through a default by R. Norris Williams II and the other three won their matches. Clothier defeated Francis T. Hunter, of New York; Roberts won from Harry Parker, of New York; Armstrong disposed of Richard Harte, of Harvard.

R. Norris Williams, 24, national champion last year, defeated Watson M. Washburn, winner of last season's tournament the semi-final round in the singles was reached, and in the fourth round of the doubles William M. Johnston and Clarence J. Griffin, holders of the national title, defeated William A. Larned and William J. Clothier, national singles champions before the advent of Maurice E. McLoughlin.

In this division of the tournament Williams, teamed up with Richard Harte, also of Harvard, defeated R. L. Oakley and Reginald Cook, at 6-1, 6-3. In the next round, the fourth, they defeated Conrad B. Doyle and John S. Pfenner, at 6-3, 6-3, while Johnston and Griffin won from Larned and Clothier, at 6-4, 6-3.

The Comet and his partner put in some practice ticks together late in the afternoon. McLoughlin said that he was in good shape.

ROBINSON IS AFTER
McGRAW FOR KELLY

Robins Want Experienced Man to Replace Injured Jake Daubert.

CINCINNATI, Aug. 25.—Fred Kelly, first baseman and outfielder of the Giants, may become a member of the Robins before many hours have passed. In exchange for Kelly the Giants will receive one of Robbie's pitchers. Robbie was in communication with McGraw over the long-distance telephone this morning and made the offer for Kelly.

If Robbie expects to win the pennant for the Brooklyn team this season he must obtain an experienced first baseman in a hurry, for Daubert's leg is so bad it probably will be three weeks before he is able to play again. Early today it was reported that Robbie was going to trade "Texas Ed" Appleton, a first baseman by the name of Warren Adams of the Winnipeg Club of the Northern League. Adams is a six-footer and leads the Northern League in base stealing. He will report in a few days.

Golter Has Difficulty
With Lengthy Rules

To the person whose experience of golf is not a lengthy one, the rules of the game are something of a nightmare. A statistician has computed that they run to 9,000 words, and as they are all meat, so to speak, every scrap of which ought to be thoroughly digested by the average beginner, said beginner after two or three perusals of them finally decides to trust to Providence or his caddy to keep him within the law.

It is to be feared that a great many rules are broken every day for the reason that caddies are either ignorant or do not consider it politic to criticize an employer who may be thinking of giving a tip. An opponent or a partner, be he the most generous soul in the world, ought in the common interests to draw attention to any breach committed by the player. It often happens, however, that he does not know an infringement when he sees one, and so both sides go on breaking rules until the end of the round.

Particularly is this the case in regard to the decree which says that, on the putting green, any loose impediment may be lifted, and in a special clause gives permission for dung, wormcasts, snow and ice to be scraped away with a club. The majority of players do not bother to differentiate. They scrape away anything. This is more particularly the case of the rank and file golfer, and not of the prominent players, who, in most cases, have learned in a school of hard experience.

It might be better to have one rule on the subject, stating that loose impediments could only be scraped aside with a club. Certainly it is a good thing that the old law, allowing the line of putt to be brushed with the hand, has been abolished, for many players had a way of brushing so diligently that in the end they had the blades of grass lying all one way and something in the nature of a gully leading to the hole. In the early days of the game, when putting green were rough, the golfer was allowed a lot of license, and it was no uncommon sight to see a man energetically beating the ground with a club so as to remove irregularities in the turf that stood in the line of his putt.

As the art of greenkeeping developed it was considered sufficient to give him permission to brush the line lightly with his hand. But in the course of time, many a player came to believe that he had a perfect right to make his way along the track selected for the putt, brushing every inch of it with the firmness and method of a clothes repainer engaged in cleaning and pressing a suit. So it was decided that some loose impediments should be picked up and others scraped with a club. The latter concession would be sufficient considering the excellent condition in which the average green is maintained nowadays.

A rule which stands in need of amendment is that concerning out of bounds. It is absurd that the penalty be only loss of distance, when, for losing a ball on the course, the player has to give up the hole in a match or sacrifice a penalty stroke as well as distance in a medal round. The out of bounds area is plain to see, and in the majority of cases it is only a very bad shot that goes into it. As often as not the ball would never be found in five minutes if the responsibility developed upon the player for looking for it.

Frequently he does look for it for that period, or sends somebody else to do so; yet although it is a lost ball if ever there was such a thing, his penalty is only loss of distance because he happens to have made so crooked a shot, as to send the object out of bounds. The place in which a ball is lost on the course cannot as a rule be seen from the spot at which the fatal shot is executed. If it could, "lost ball" would not be such a common occurrence. It at least has the merit of being somewhere on the course, but the penalty is the most drastic that golfing law can impose short of actual disqualification. The punishment for getting out of bounds ought to be at least as severe. Under the St. Andrews code clubs are given permission to make it so by local rule, but very few avail themselves of the opportunity for the reason that the minor penalty is the prescribed regulation of the subject.

The rule that if a ball at rest be displaced by an agency outside the match—such as a piffling spectator or a mischievous animal—another ball shall be dropped as near as possible to where the first ball lay, is not satisfactory when any doubt exists on the latter point. In such circumstances, it would be easier and better to go back and play another shot. Are you troubled with oscillating cranium, misbehaving eyes or body sway? Some golfers are. So here's a cure-all. Listen: It's a pair of gold, or horn-mounted spectacles, with unique lenses. In the center of each lens is a small hole. The lenses fit movably in their frames, so that adjustment can be made to suit the wearer. These glasses, properly adjusted, permit a player to see directly in front of him. If he turns his head when about to strike a ball the ball is shut off from view and the player is forced to correct his form so that the ball will be brought into the line of vision.
